Kevin Shuba has an innate ability to find elegant solutions in the most complex situations. As a trusted defender, negotiator, and advocate, he imbues confidence in his clients by crafting timely and practical solutions that rapidly resolve cases. Kevin's thoughtful approach to law allows him to make the right moves for his clients, thereby strengthening their positions and guiding them to resolution.

Kevin draws on more than 20 years of legal experience — including 13 years of distinguished service at the Oregon Department of Justice — in serving clients efficiently, effectively and economically. Whether he is preserving the reputations and future earning ability for licensed professionals or strategically resolving complex construction and real estate disputes, his clients' future remains his top priority.

In construction and real estate matters, Kevin's emphasis is on finding timely, cost-effective and practical solutions for businesses that move his clients toward their goals. In probate matters, he teams with Theresa Wade to recover assets for estates and protect the rights of heirs and devisees, and advocate for the rights of the elderly and disabled in financial abuse proceedings and in contested conservator and guardian proceedings. In the practice of administrative law, Kevin defends employers against OSHA citations and professionals facing discipline before professional licensing boards.

Prior to joining the firm, Kevin served as Assistant Attorney General for the Oregon Department of Justice in both the Trial Division and General Counsel Division for various state agencies. Actively involved in the legal community, Kevin has been selected to provide continuing legal education to other attorneys in the fields of administrative law and civil litigation, serving as both a presenter and panel member. He authored the chapter on OR-OSHA practice in the Oregon State Bar's Workers' Compensation CLE in 2005. Kevin joined the firm in 2004, and became a shareholder in 2007.
